Bio

Painter, lecturer, traveler and visual arts researcher, Jim Ulrich currently makes the Village of Beiseker his home and studio. The village is located in Alberta, Canada approximately one hour North East of the City of Calgary. Jim also has a studio in Banchang Rayong Thailand.

Jim's inspiration and development stems from a myriad of sources and his interest in natural phenomena and extensive travel has engaged Jim in projects near and far, including, Northern Australia, Thailand and California.

His multi-layered works are primarily in acrylic on canvas and Jim's current works exploit new industrial pigments and synthetic colours that extend colour perception and experience. The intricate dialogue, rhythms and visual conversation in his new work engage the viewer's imagination as never before.

Jim's works are available from drawing to mural size, and may be scaled for public works and commercial interiors.
